Subject: Joint Commission Revised Requirements for Diagnostic Imaging Services

Effective July 1, 2015, new requirements are being implemented by the Joint Commission for accredited hospitals and critical access hospitals. One of these requirements concerns staff qualifications, including diagnostic medical physicists who support computed tomography (CT) services (HR.01.02.05, C20). Specifically, the hospital must verify and document that these medical physicists have either an appropriate board certification or meet a series of requirements.

A copy of my certification (#P6751) in Diagnostic Medical Physics by the American Board of Radiology (ABR), effective May 21, 2014, is attached here for your records in documenting my qualifications under this new Joint Commission standard.
